The Temperance Lecture.

Mr. Woolever, a student of Soule College, and a young man who is studying for the ministry, occupied the pulpit in the M. E. church, Sunday, owing to the absence of the pastor at the conference.

In the morning, Mr. Woolever delivered an excellent sermon on the efficacy and benefit of prayer. His morning effort perhaps augmented the congregation at the evening service, for the church was comfortably filled.

Mr. Woolever has a voice which, if not lifted above its capacity—as the vocalists say, if not “pitched too high”—has a deep tone and is strong, showing the rugged and sturdy character of the possessor. His manner is rather pleasant, and his gestures will become more graceful with experience; but when Mr. Woolever attempts to lend additional effort to his utterances by raising his voice above the natural key, he destroys the effect. And yet, Mr. Woolever has better elocution, is more graceful in speech and manner, is more impressive and more logical than many of the preachers who have more education and experience.

On Sunday night, Mr. Woolever spoke on temperance. This is no new subject. It is as old as Adam. The modern temperance lecturers offer no new means for eradicating the evil. It is dogged persistence in framing the public mind against the demon that will bring it in greater disrepute. It matters not how the subject is presented, so that it is not “dry,” but entertaining. The writer has listened to many temperance lecturers, and among them the renowned John B. Gough. Mr. Woolever reminded us somewhat of Mr. Gough and the resemblance goes beyond platform manners. Gough was a man of small stature, thin, melancholy face, and bright eyes—which flashed under excitement. His fluent language, his dramatic action, his intense and impassioned earnestness, his suppressed feelings, and the lightning like rapidity with which he changed the moods of the audience with his own from the humorous to the pathetic, took all audiences by storm. Those who heard the lecture of Sunday night will admit of some comparison.

Mr. Woolever began his lecture with an anecdote, and then rendered a pathetic story, telling something of real life, from his own knowledge and observation. He could speak with distinctness and truthfulness about the “joins” in Dodge City, for he had been in one of them, and in his recognition he was enabled to see the liquor dispensed. Herein, he would make a good witness, and perhaps few of his auditors were ever in a “joint,” and knew nothing from personal observation, except by the odor as they passed by, and though they might be lacking in the requisite aid to disperse them—“sand in the craw”—like the preacher's rooster that died from eating too much corn and lack of sand in the craw—they could say that they were perishing from a similar cause—a lack of the process of assimilation in over feeding in temperance talk.

The audience gave the lecturer very close attention. The people laughed at his anecdotes and they expressed approbation of his sentiments in quiet and attentive listening; but the lecturer failed to appreciate or understand this fact, for he gave a rebuke that made a little sensation. He called to a boy in the audience to come forward and say amen and he would give him a nickel. The boy promptly came to the speaker's stand, but he politely refused to take the nickel. “Well, say amen,” says the lecturer. “Amen,” says the boy, and with a polite bow he resumed his seat. The “amen” and “hallelujah” people were evidently not present Sunday night, or else they were so much absorbed in the lecture, or were carried so quickly from the gay to the pathetic, that they were unable to interject the complimentary ejaculations of approval given to commendatory religious utterances—those outbursts of exuberant emotion that find vent in “amen,” “hallelujah,” “praise the Lord,” etc., etc. But one brother in Israel, in the back part of the house, to offset this kindergarten episode, shouted “Praise the Lord.” To use the vernacular language of the stage, this “brought down the house.”

At the close, Mr. Woolever was warmly congratulated for his interesting lecture.

THE WICHITA CONFERENCE.

The Ministers in Line for Law Enforcement.

The Southwestern Kansas Conference chose as ministerial delegates to the general conference, Revs. W. J. Martindale of Wichita, G. Lowther of Winfield and W. H. Rose of Dodge City.

The question of admitting the women to equal conference rights was carried in favor of the fair sex by a vote of 89 to 12.

The lay delegates chosen were James Allison of Wichita and T. J. Hutton of Kingman, with W. C. Robinson of Winfield and E. R. Burkholder of Hillsboro, as alternates.

Dr. Brumbaugh of Atchison delivered a remarkable temperance address Friday night, setting his large audience wild with enthusiasm.

The Southwest Methodist Episcopal conference Saturday adopted resolutions renewing their stand for the speedy and complete annihilation of the accursed liquor traffic. “The very moral and political atmosphere is so charged with the local sentiment and resubmission theory doctrine,” say the resolutions, “that unless the Christian citizenship of the state will arise en masse, we will be long before confronted with the open saloon calamity, the most direful in its results to the state, and “Whereas, We discover in the recent utterance of some of our leading papers and officials high in office a perilous tendency toward an utter disregard of law.

“Resolved, That it is the sense of this conference that when the power of the press and that of the politicians is leagued with that of the rum seller, gambler and brothel keeper the issue is not a political one, but strictly a moral one, and that the support of the press and officials thus throwing their influence on the side of immorality and the nullification of law is incompatible with Christian duty and life.

“Resolved, That we deplore the recent utterance of the chief executive who says the prohibitory law cannot be enforced in communities where the prevailing sentiment is against it, and that since the liquor traffic cannot be legalized without sin, neither can those who favor its legislation be voted for without sin, when in our power.”

The sentiment in the New York State Convention for McKinley was very much pronounced in votes and cheering, but Morton, the “favorite son,” has the delegates.

Congress has done nothing, and an early adjournment is hoped.

Those who are troubled with rheumatism should try a few applications of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, rubbing the parts vigorously at each application. If that does not bring relief dampen a piece of flannel with Pain Balm and bind it on over the seat of pain and prompt relief will surely follow. For sale by W. F. FINE.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This is the best medicine in the world for bowel complaints. It acts quickly and can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. Try it, and like many others you will recommend it to your friend. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by W. F. FINE.

Hon. Chas. Patton, of Wichita, visited the city yesterday and organized a lodge of the Mystic Brotherhood. As soon as the necessary supplies and paraphernalia arrives a set of officers will be elected, regular meetings held and new members received. He also organized a lodge at Ingalls. Cinnarron Jacksonian.

This means beer and resubmission, and more beer.

Tribute to a Deceased Soldier.

Our Fort Dodge correspondent adds the following historical account of the army in which Stephen B. Allen served, the aged soldier whose obituary was published last week:

Another old comrade has crossed the Rapidan. Stephen B. Allen, of the 10th Connecticut, died some days ago, and as the name of his regiment indicates he came from that good old New England outcrop State, and also marched and fought with that grand old bruised and battered Army of the Potomac, to which comrade Prince belonged. Now, just to give our readers an idea of that “bruised and battered” army, we will give you a few figures, and you must bear in mind that this great loss is due to the fact that we had to fight Virginians and North Carolinians—the flower of the “Confederacy.” The Second Army Corps, Major General Hancock commanding, went into the battle of the Wilderness, May 5th, 1864, with 27,000 men, and in 11 months and 4 days lost in killed, wounded and captured more than 30,000 men—3,000 more than it started with! They had to keep reinforcing the corps continually, and principally with raw troops.

It is a wonder that we succeeded as well as we did, for we had to fight veterans with raw troops the whole of 1864, for the confeds did not discharge their men.

I myself had the honor to belong to this grand old 2d corps, and I was one of the 30,000, too, for I was lost in the Wilderness—reported killed and burned up, and did not find my way back until April 16th, 1865, at Appomattox. The other corps, the 5th, 6th and 9th, lost in proportion, for during those bloody days the army lost more than 113,000 men, almost as many as Sherman started with to take Atlanta. As intimated, a great part of this loss is due to the fact that the army consisted principally of raw troops. As Bonaparte said of his disastrous campaign in 1814, “The old guard did wonders, the rest melted like snow.” What I say of the 2d corps is not hearsay; it is history.

Comrade Allen was born Oct. 8, 1808. What a history is included in these intervening years! He has lived under every President's administration since the founding of the Republic save two—Washington and Adams. It falls to the lot of few persons to embrace so many great events and changes in this old world's history.

FORT DODGE, KANSAS.

—Com. Jack Musser has taken his leave and departed to south-east part of state.

—They started the pump west of the school house again.

—Several of the boys, Solomon and McCormick are very low—in hospital.

—Our old friend Rondebush has returned to the Fort. He thought he could live out side with ease, but found it up hill work. He says however, that he has had $200 worth of experience.

—Com. Corey has begun to plow for garden.

—We think of having a notorious garden this year.

—They had a birthday party the other night at Com. Corey's. We were not invited—that's the reason we did not speak of it last week—we overlooked it, but we learn that results were double what might be expected.

—The Sabbath School folks elected as officers—Frank Madden, Superintendent; Dr. Hawkins, assistant, and the school now starts out for a new campaign against the powers of darkness. That signifies we will light up.

—We had a narrow escape from a big fire out in suburbs the other day. The boys had burned a straw stack several days before the terrible blow, there was fire beneath, the ashes above blew away, and then trials and troubles began. Be careful about fire.

The Taylors, the murderers of the Meek's family, in Missouri, have had their sentence confirmed, by the Supreme Court, and the date of execution is fixed for April 30.

J. E. Roberts has another artesian well at his ranch. It is not a very strong flow but the water pours out day and night and is evidence of artesian water in abundance. The well is 200 feet deep.

During the winter of 1893, F. M. Martin of Long Beach, West Va., contracted a severe cold which left him with a cough. In speaking of how he cured it he says: “I used several kinds of cough syrups but found no relief until I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved me almost instantly, and in a short time brought about a complete cure.” When troubled with a cough or cold use this remedy and you will not find it necessary to try several kinds before you get relief. It has been in the market for over twenty years and constantly grows in favor and popularity. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by W. F. FINE.

The following is an order from D. D. Baily, Train Master of east division: “Complaint is made that for some time past some of our train men have been in the habit of gambling in way cars at terminal stations; and this at times when they needed rest. I am directed to inform you that all card playing in way-cars at night is forbidden and employees found gambling in way-cars at any time will be dismissed from the service.”

The Southwest Kansas Conference on Saturday passed a resolution attempting to explain the address of Bishop Andrews on Thursday, in which he counseled the young men to eschew active politics. The Bishop preceded the adoption of the resolutions by stating that it was his firm belief that the ministry did themselves and their calling great harm by following side issues. He did not ask them to desist from temperance work, but that it should not be to the exclusion of regular duties, nor follow them when it stirred up strife and local dissensions.

While Conductor Dodge was attempting to board train No. 3 of which he was conductor, at Lakin, Wednesday night, two supposed tramps grabbed him, and held him until the train was out of reach, and then turned him loose and ran away. In grabbing him they jerked the conductor's lantern out and he was unable to signal to the engineer so he had to remain until they were ready to release him. As soon as he was permitted to go he went to the depot and wired the dispatcher at La Junta who instructed him to go to La Junta on No. 31 which would be along in a few minutes, which he done. It is not known what the object of those assailants were, but is supposed that they intended to rob Mr. Dodge but were scared away.—Syracuse Republican, 25.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St. San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching Consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottle at W. F. Fine's Drug Store. Regular size $50c, and $1.00.
